SOIL ANALYSIS AND PLANT FOOD.

By T. F. Peck, Commissioner of Agriculture.

The Department of Agriculture is frequently called upon to analyze soil, and at times the chemist of the Department has been pretty busy complying with these requests, in connection with his other duties.

The chemical analysis of soils will tell the different elements of plant food, and the quantity in which they are present, but it cannot tell how much of it is available for plant growth. I have seen soil as rich in plant food as soil of the Nile, but on account of its physical or mechanical conditions, it is not available for plant growth. Soil that is soaked with dead water will not grow crops except some forms of swamp grass.

Plowing soil when it is too wet will lock up the plant food and make it unavailable for plants. I am interested first in getting my soil in proper mechanical conditions. I want my ground well drained. I want to break it when it will pulverize best. I want to pulverize deep and prepare a good seed bed, and then after planting with good seed, and the plants up cultivate thoroughly, shallowly and often. Make available all the plant food in the soil.

When the crop is growing and maturing, I can tell by its appearance in what it is deficient—what elements of plant food it is necessary to supply. Anyone who cares to know if the soil is deficient in nitrogen, if such is the case, can tell by the pale, sickly green of the growing crop. If there is plenty of nitrogen the color is a rich dark green.

If there is a deficiency of potash and phosphorous, these elements ought to be supplied. Chemical analysis of soils is a poor guide. If you were to take fifty samples from a ten-acre field and have them analyzed you would find a wide range in amounts of plant food.

I prefer getting the soil in good condition, cultivate the crops well, and be governed in my treatment of the soil by the danger signals the crops hold out.

I have built up much neglected land in my time, and I have never had to buy anything but lime and phosphate. I have taken my nitrogen from the air and made up for any apparent lack of potash by breaking up the subsoil, letting it crumble or disintegrate and mix with the surface soil.

Truck croppersmen. I suppose, profitably use commercial nitrogen and potash where their plan of cropping is so intensive that will admit to no system of rotation. The general stock farmer can use his money to advantage otherwise. In general, if we would be farmers instead of farm miners, we will keep in mind the true agricultural cycle of growing crops to feed animals which in turn feed the soil—not waste, but beneficial change of matter.

The plodder often makes more progress than the rapid worker who has to hurry to make up for wasted time.

A wise judge has decided that a woman who has not faithfully performed her household duties is not entitled to alimony with her divorce. If all women would perform their household duties faithfully, there would not be so many looking for divorces.

The man who would solve the mystery of a woman could make a good start by finding out what she sees in man to charm her.

Why We Now Have Fast-Time Farming

IT WAS once thought that it would be impossible to do farm work thoroughly if the tools traveled over the land any faster than a good team of horses could walk. However, the fast-running Fordson, coupled with Standard Fordson Equipment, does the field work much more thoroughly at a higher rate of speed.

For seeding in faster time the AMSCO DRILL, made especially for the Fordson, is recommended. It is made exceptionally strong and durable. There are no light castings and the frame work is made of strong angle steel with an I-beam in the center.

The feed mechanism is so positive that there is no danger of inaccurate dropping, even when the seed boxes are nearly empty.

The discs are raised by a power lift which is so prompt in its action that much narrower headlands are required. This is a big advantage in saving time on large or small fields.
